"The Most Unforgettable Character" in the February, 1966, most unforgottable graduates of Bowdoin College.

Admiral Donald B. MacMillin, 98, famed Arctic explorer, is the subject of a seven-page entitled "The Most Unforgettable Character I've Met"

The article by Rutherford Platt, who travelled on two Arctic voyages with Admiral Mac-Millan, describes the 91-year-old Provincetown, Mass, resident as an "explorer, scientist, and teacher of courage and beauty to men." Mr. Platt tells of voyages on Admiral MacMillan's famous schooner "Bowdoln" in 1947 and again

The author traces the explorer's early years in Provincetown, Mass., when he sailed as far as Nova Scotla with his father, who was a captain of fishing schooners. The article also recalls his later boyhood as an orphan in Freeport, Maine, where he lived with a married sister.

To earn his way through Bowdoin, the Reader's Digest article notes, Admiral MacMillin "worked as high-school janitor, sold books house to house, drove a milk cart, ran a private gymnaclum, taught country school."

After graduation he became a teacher and in the summer operated a camp on the Maine coast. It was at the camp that he saved ten people in two separate boating secidents within the space of four days. His heroic deeds came to the attention of Admiral Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer and member of Bowdoin's class of 1877.

In 1908 Peary invited him to of the most famous of Arctic exclorations, the discovery of the feet. North Pole. Today, Admiral Mac-Millan is the last surviving mem-
